LICs or ETFs?

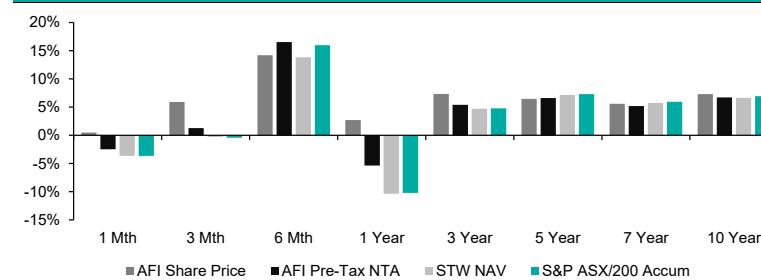

Traditionally, the main differentiating factor between Exchange Traded Funds (ETFs) and Listed Investment Companies (LICs) was the employed style of management. However with a growing suite of rule-based Exchange Traded Products this is now much less pronounced. Given the persistence of discounts, many actively managed closed-end funds are also now opting to restructure through the appointment of market makers and by disclosing all holdings on a daily basis. Both AFI and STW have management expense ratios of 0.14% and use the S&P ASX/200 Accumulation Index as their benchmark. The real difference lies in the legal structure and tax implications associated with these entities. LICs have access to a fixed pool of capital, where all profits are subject to tax at the corporate tax rate. Just like with all other listed companies, LICs have complete discretion over dividend policy. ETFs on the other hand, are trusts with open-ended sources of funding that can both grow and shrink depending on the flow of money. The fund does not pay tax on earnings, but rather, distributes these earnings onto the investor who then pays tax at their marginal tax rate. In the case of AFI and STW, NTA/NAV returns appear to normalise in the long-term with active weights being crowded out by the similarities of the two 'portfolios'. However in the short-term, there appears to be superior downside mitigation and outperformance expressed by the movement in both the share price and pre-tax NTA. AFI currently provides fully franked income with a net yield of 3.6% (5.1% gross). STW meanwhile is currently providing partially franked income with a net yield of 2.8% (3.0% gross).

QVE and PIA to Pay Quarterly Dividends

The Boards of QV Equities (QVE) and Pengana International Equities (PIA) have resolved to adopt a quarterly dividend payment policy. In particular the Board of QVE has maintained its intention to hold dividends at 4.4 cents per share for the financial year ended 30 June 21, but through this announcement, highlights the importance placed on the frequency of these payments. While the time value of money is seemingly inconsequential, many investors are in need of regular income, especially given the current environment. QVE and PIA now join the existing list of 12 LICs/LITs in this report that distribution income more frequently than every half-year.

Bell Potter's Indicative NTA tracks the 'indicative' movement of a LICs underlying NTA each month by monitoring the percentage movements of the disclosed holdings, and using an index to track the movement of the remaining positions. We have also included an adjusted indicative NTA and adjusted discount, which removes the LIC distribution from the ex-dividend date until the receipt of the new NTA post the payment date.
